J. LOHR

Cynthia Lohr

As the daughter of wine industry pioneer Jerry Lohr, Cynthia Lohr spent some of her youth in the vineyards and at the wineries, absorbing aspects of the wine industry firsthand. As an adult, she chose her own path, establishing a reputation for excellence in strategic marketing and public relations, working with a who's who of leading Internet and technology companies. In 2002, Cynthia joined the family business as director of communications for J. Lohr Vineyards & Wines, and in 2009, she was named marketing vice president.

Cynthia's efforts to champion the family business led to J. Lohr being recognized as the 2010 "American Winery of the Year" by Wine Enthusiast Magazine, and the notable partnership with the National Breast Cancer Foundation to support mammograms for women in need through sales of wines from Carol's Vineyard. A deeply personal story to the Lohr family, this national campaign has helped fund more than 5,000 mammograms for women who would otherwise be unable to afford them, and raise awareness for this important cause.

"I have a passion for brand advocacy, particularly in support of building awareness for organizations such as the Paso Robles CAB (Cabernet and Bordeaux) Collective, and Women of the Vine Spirits, whose efforts promote regional varietal education and the advancement of women in wine and spirits, respectively,"

XECO

Alexa Keymer, Polly Bolus and Beanie Espey

XECO is the brain-child of 3 'fino fiends' who share a love of sherry & a frustration that this love isn't shared by friends.

The '3 Fino Fiends established this start-up back in 2016 and together, they are reinventing and revolutionizing the industry. The vision 'Let's make sherry cool again' started to take shape, under the codename 'Project Seco'. Their supreme selection of this unique Spanish wine is designed for a new generation. No longer, will Sherry be referred to as 'granny's favorite tipple!' With their 30 years of experience and inimitable dedication, the all female team succeeded in partnering with an old Sherry house, Díez Mérito.
